Experience

Javier Napoleone, lawyer, is a member of Corporate Law Department and in the Banking & Finance Department. He regularly counsels companies within the financial industry. He participates regularly in project development and finance transactions within the infrastructure and energy sector, both on the sponsor and lender side, capital markets and M&A transactions, both cross-border and domestic, across several industries.

He also represents a wide range of lenders and corporate borrowers in financing transactions, and counsels companies in their day-to-day operations in Uruguay, from a corporate and regulatory perspective.

Javier graduated from Columbia University (LL.M), where he graduated as Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar in recognition of his academic achievement. He practiced in the New York offices of Shearman & Sterling LLP.

He has been recognized by international publications such as “Chambers & Partners” and “Legal 500” for his performance in Projects & Energy.

Work highlights

- Assisted Banco Itaú in its strategic investment in Prex and Paigo, acquiring a 30% stake in both companies, enabling Prex and Paigo to continue its expansion in Latin America, and allowing Banco Itaú to continue positioning itself as leader in the digital transformation of its business.
- Advised Hudson Sustainable Investments on a note issuance worth USD 84.775 million to refinance debt tied to the development of a portfolio of solar photovoltaic plants in Uruguay of 84.3 MWdc., which constituted Hudson's inaugural green bond.
